Acknowledgement of Course Based Research with Human Participants Form

Please complete and submit this form to Dr. Jessica Becking, Research Ethics Board Coordinator at (613) 969-1913, x2406, or email to: jbecking@loyalistcollege.com

Research involving human participants and undertaken using any Loyalist College resources requires review and approval from the College's Research Ethics Board (REB). However, such research performed as a course assignment or quality assurance of a course or program and intended ONLY for the professor's review or class presentation, may be exempt when the professor files an appropriate "acknowledgement" with the Loyalist College Applied Research and Innovation Department.

This form, when completed, acknowledges; 1) a professor's planned project to use student participants to assess a course or program's success, the results of which will only be used for internal purposes; 2) a whole-class assignment where all students are performing a research project involving human participants; or 3) an unplanned project where a professor and student(s) mutually agree such research is an interesting and appropriate response to a course assignment.

Please complete all sections and processes as indicated on this form.
